

Did you know that...?

The Eurasian eagle-owl is one of the largest owls in the world and is easy to recognize by its powerful body, striking eyes, and prominent feather tufts.
Its noticeable "ear tufts" are not real ears but groups of feathers, while the actual ear openings are hidden beneath feathers on the sides of its head.
The eagle-owl produces a deep, far-carrying hoot that helps it communicate with other eagle-owls and announce its territory.
It is most active around dusk and at night, often calling from elevated places where its voice can travel across forests and open valleys.
